H-BOMB 'FATHER' WARNS U. S.

Moroccan King Arrives in U.S. For State Visit

WASHINGTON (UP) — King Mohammed V of Morocco arrives today for his first U. S. visit in which he will attempt to iron out some problems and see the nation and its people from President Eisenhower to Joe Smith.

The three week tour will include a three-day official state visit here which is expected to further cement Moslem ties with the West.

From the time he enters this nation King Mohammed will get the deluxe red carpet treatment. President Eisenhower will greet him personally at the airport, an honor accorded only heads of state.

The King and President will ride in a motorcade to the White House from the airport. Mohammed V. will lunch privately at Blair House and will meet the press during a reception later in the afternoon.

Will Give State Dinner

Tonight President and Mrs. Eisenhower will entertain King Mohammed and his official party at a state dinner at the White House.

During his visit the King is expected to confer with the President at least twice. He will also talk with Secretary of State John Foster Dulles.

Mohammed V, leader of a potentially rich nation of nine million souls at the western end of the Arab bloc, is one of the most respected statesmen of the Moslem world.

While in the United States King Mohammed wants to look at an American supermarket. He will visit a department store and some average American homes as well.

In his talks with U.S. officials King Mohammed and Foreign Minister Ahmed Balafrej are expected to try to win support for the joint Moroccan - Tunisian offer to mediate the three-year-old nationalist rebellion against the French in neighboring Algeria.

May Discuss Bases

The question of U. S. bases in Algeria will probably come up because the agreement originally was negotiated with France. Negotiations have since been conducted with Morocco on a smooth but slow basis.

There may also be some discussion of .S. economic aid to Morocco and of continued operation of a Voice of America transmitter in Tangier.

While here King Mohammed will do some sightseeing around Washington and historic Williamsburg and Jamestown, Va. From there he will fly to Dallas, Tex., take a side trip to the famous King Ranch and the Kingsville, Tex., Naval Air Station.

He also will visit os Angeles and San Francisco, Cal.f., Offutt Air Force Base, Neb., Ningara Falls, N.Y., and New York City.

Former Local Steel Magnate Leaves Fortune

A former president of the Weirton Steel Co., who was briefly associated with the American Tin Plate plant in Monessen, has bequeathed a million dollars to a hospital at Loughor, Wales.

The large estate was left by the late John C. Williams. Born in Loughor, Williams never forgot his childhood hardships there.

He was one of the pioneers of Weirton Steel He first met Ernest T. and David Weir, brothers, when they were both with the tin plate plant in Monessen Together they organized the Weirton firm.

Allegheny County Orphans Court has been asked to approve the Williams bequest.

Williams also left money to schools in Loughor, Llanelly and Kidwelly, Wales.

A trust fund for the Welsh communities was set up in Pittsburgh in 1953 under management of the Fidelity Trust Co. after the death of Williams' last surviving brother, Thomas.

Prior to 1953, income from the Williams' estate had been paid under a separate trust fund to his three sisters and the brother in Wales until their death.

Details of the trust were worked out here between the British government and Fidelity officials.

Williams, who died in 1936, also remembered the towns of Weirton, W. Va., and Steubenville, Ohio. He bequeathed nearly three million dollars which will be shared equally by the communities on the death of his widow.

Mrs. Anna D. Williams, the widow, still lives in the family home at Steubenville. She has gone over the plan with Fidelity officials and given her approval.

William Diamon, president of the union, said the dairymen will urge the Commission to approve "price adjustments."

Diamon said the increased prices were necessary in order to help district diarymen recover from the summer-long drought. He pointed out that other areas of the state have already received such relief.

The union also disclosed that strongly-worded letters have been mailed to Gov. George M. Leader and Jobe Mahood, chairman of the Milk Commission, protesting the slow action on proposed price increases.

The Commission held hearings on the issue in Pittsburgh on Oct. 15, 16 and 17.

$15,000 Damage In Six-alarm Pittsburgh Fire

PITTSBURGH (UP) — Damage was estimated at $15,000 today from a six-alarm fire that swept through a partially demolished building, then spread to an adjoining commercial structure on the North Side.

The old four - story Pressley House, a former institution for friendless children, was set ablaze Sunday by sparks from a bonfire started by employes of a wrecking company which was dismantling the building.

After spreading through the abandoned building the flames, fanned by high winds, leaped across an alley and ignited the roof of a commercial structure housing 14 small specialty firms. Damage to the commercial building was estimated at $7,000 by Deputy Fire Chief Charles McDermott.

Fireman brought the fire under control about two hours after the first alarm was sounded. At the heighth of the blaze, flames leaped about 100 feet into the air and were visible from the Golden Triangle.

Says Russia Can Soon Hit Cities In United States

WASHINGTON (UP) — Dr. Edward Teller, "father" of the H-bomb, said today Russia may have or soon will have an inter-continental ballistic missile accurate enough to hit American cities.

He said the United States fell behind in the race into space because it waited until it had a nuclear warhead for its long-range missile "and by that time it was too late."

Teller was the first witness as the Senate Preparedness subcommittee opened its investigation of the U.S. missile and satellite programs with a warning that the nation faces a greater crisis than at Pearl Harbor.

Senate Democratic leader Lyndon B. Johnson (Tex.), the subcommittee chairman, said in opening the hearing that Russia's challenge with Sputniks I and II demand from the nation "the greatest effort in American history."

Teller told the investigators he believes the Russians have developed and tested intercontinental ballistic missiles (ICBM's) as they claim, but he added a hope that they have not produced them in sufficient numbers to be put into operation.

Can Hit Houston

He said he believes they either have "or will have in a short time" ICBM's which are accurate enough to hit such American cities as Houston, Tex.

The Hungarian - born scientist, now associate director of the University of California Radiation Laboratory at Livermore, Calif., warned that unless the United States steps up its military missile program "there is no doubt that the Russians will leave us behind and way behind."

Under questioning by special counsel Edwin L. Weisl, Teller said continued testing of nuclear weapons is "absolutely necessary."

"You have to get an idea started and then go out into the field and see how it works out," he said.

He said the United States has developed a "clean type bomb" which "is already effective in that it cuts out 95 per cent of radioactivity."

Sputniks Show Red Progress

Teller said Russia's space satellites have "very great significance," both militarily and scientifically, because they show Russian technological progress.

He said the Russian Sputniks of themselves were not positive proof that the Soviets have the ICBM. But he said it would be "great mistake to proceed under the assumption that they are only bluffing" in claiming to have developed the long-range missile.

He said it is "reasonable to believe" that the Russians, like the United States, have solved the reentry problem—the means of getting a missile back through the earth's atmosphere without it burning up from friction.

Teller said U.S. ICBM planning was to develop an effective warhead first.

"Without a warhead, the long-

Local Youth Is Free on Bond In Target Death

William E. Helzlsourer, 16, of 52 Schoonmaker Ave., Monessen, who is being held on manslaughter charges, is free today on $2,000 bond.

The youth's parents posted the bond before Justice of the Peace Raymond J. Curley Friday night.

Helzlsouer will be given a hearing "sometime after Thanksgiving," Curley said today.

He faces charges of voluntary and involuntary manslaughter following the Nov. 3 shooting which resulted in the death of a classmate, Thomas E. Steer Jr., 16, of 921 Summit Ave., Monessen.

The victim, Helzlsouer and three other companions were target practicing in an area near Twilight Borough when the tragedy occurred.

Steer died from a bullet wound which entered behind his right ear and lodged in the brain. He succumbed four days later during a brain operation in Mercy Hospital, Pittsburgh.

District Attorney Michael Hanna, Washington County, said the fatal bullet came from a gun Helzlsouer was using.

Pope Gives Views on Keeping Patients Alive

VATICAN CITY (UP)— Pope Pius XII said Sunday a doctor has a right but not a duty to keep an unconscious patient alive by extraordinary mechanical means.

He said since life may linger on after a patient's heart stops beating a doctor has the right to "reanimate" such a person by artificial means.

But he said if the patient is in a coma and shows no signs of improvement the doctor may stop the artificial respiration if the family insists, even if this makes it certain the patient will die.

"In such a case there is no direct disposition of the life of the patient, neither is it euthanasia (mercy death) which is never legitimate," the Pope said. "Even when it (removal of the apparatus) provokes the cessation of blood circulation, the interruption of the attempts at re-animation is only indirectly the cause of the cessation of life."

The 81-year-old Pope was speaking in French - to delegates to an International Congress of anesthetists who attended a special audience. His comments were in direct answer to questions involving Catholic morality and philosophy in medicine submitted to him by Dr. Bruno Haid, head of the anesthesia department at Inssbruck (Austria) University clinic.

One question asked at what point the Catholic Church considered a patient who lay in coma without improvement for days on end, and was kept breathing only by artificial means, to be dead—either "de facto" (by reason of the fact) or "de jure" (by reason of law).

"It is up to the doctor, and especially the anesthetist, to give a clear and precise definition of 'death' and of the 'moment of death' of a patient who is breathing in a state of unconsciousness," the Pope said.

He said the reply to the question "cannot derive from any moral or religious principle" and "does not fall within the competence of the church."

"In the meantime, therefore, reply will remain in suspension," he said.

French, British in Top Talks

Seek to Restore Alliance

PARIS (UP) — British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan arrived today to confer with French Premier Felix Gaillard in talks aimed at restoring the Anglo-French alliance which was badly torn by American and British arms shipments to Tunisia.

Macmillan's plane from London landed almost two hours behind schedule at Orly Airfield southeast of Paris after being diverted from Le Bourget Airfield northeast of Paris.

At Orly, the police were all set to hold back a vast crowd but the crowd was back at Le Bourget.

In Paris, one rightwing group called for anti-British demonstrations in the Place de la Concorde near the U.S. and British embassies.

"I have come to dissipate any misunderstanding, for such cannot exist between friends like France and Britain," Macmillan said on his arrival. "We are in the same boat and no one should be allowed to rock it."

Macmillan flies back to London this evening, so his encounter today with Gaillard was to be a brief one. But the agenda was heavy with crucial issues which affected the whole Western alliance and the Dec. 16 NATO summit conference.

Main Topics Listed

Here are the main topics up for discussion:

—Tunisian arms. The French are still angry over the "token" delivery of rifles and submachine-guns to Tunisia by Britain and America.

—Algeria. France wants assurances of British support again this year when the Algerian crisis is debated in the United Nations. This may not be forthcoming since Britain feels Gaillard's plans for Algeria are not sufficient to end the rebellion and that the rebellion threatens NATO.

—NATO. France claims that Britain and the United States plan to set up an Anglo-American "directorship" to run NATO. British Foreign Minister Selwyn Lloyd who accompanied Macmillan today has emphatically denied this.

Seeks Free Trade Plan

—Free Trade. Britain wants other West European nations to agree to a plan which would include and supplement the six-nation common market. France is suspicious of the British plan, fears Britain would wreck the common market.

British political observers said the fate of the NATO summit meeting depends to a large degree on the smoothing over of the breach between France and Britain and America.

BACK IN HARNESS — Prime Minister David Ben Gurion of Israel is assisted by his wife as he leaves his car on returning to the Knesset (Parliament) in Jerusalem. He was in the hospital for several weeks as a result of injuries suffered when a grenade was thrown in the Knesset.

Accused Slayer Of Patrolmen Awaits Return

LOS ANGELES (UP)—Frank Edward Wetzel, accused slayer of two highway patrolmen, today awaited return to North Carolina to face charges of murder.

A U.S. marshal from North Carolina was expected here — possibly today — to pick up the 36-year-old mental patient and take him back to stand trial on charges of the Nov. 5 slayings of highway patrolmen W. K. Reece and J. T. Brown.

Wetzel, an escapee from a Willard, N.Y., mental institution, was picked up last week in Bakersfield, Calif., on a vagrancy charge. He was brought to Los Angeles Friday.

A nationwide manhunt was launched for the suspect after his fingerprints were found in a car abandoned in Chattanooga, Tenn., shortly after the two highway patrol officers were slain.

Officers said Wetzel admitted stealing a car near Shively, Ky., on Nov. 9 and driving to California. He said he had been in Bakersfield only a few hours when he was arrested.

Authorities in North Carolina said they would seek the death penalty for Wetzel.

NATO Troubles Are Mainly All Political

WASHINGTON (UP)—German Foreign Minister Heinrich Von Brentano and Secretary of State John Foster Dulles have agreed on the urgent need for regular political consultations inside the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

Brentano Sunday wound up two days of preparatory talks here for the NATO Council "summit" meeting in Paris next month. The U.S.-German discussions centered on finding ways and means for achieving closer political cooperation among NATO allies.

Although it was not spelled out specifically, Brentano's concern stemmed from the Tunisian arms crisis that erupted last week when the United States and Britain sent arms to Tunisia over violent French objections.

Politics The Key

Brentano believes the United States shares the German view that NATO's principal problems are political rather than military, informed sources reported. Brentano is said to have pointed out that NATO's military situation has remained unchanged since the 1948 Communist coup in Czechoslovakia.

Brentano and Dulles said they were well satisfied with the outcome of the talks. The German foreign minister said the discussions had helped "strengthen the bonds of confidence and understanding."

Top Level Talks Seen

One result of the Paris meeting, foreseen by Brentano, was a heads of government directive to the alliance's foreign ministers to study closely what can be done now to help evolve such a unified policy.

Brentano and Dulles also discussed closer scientific cooperation in NATO to coordinate western efforts to catch up with recent Soviet scientific advances. French Foreign Minister Christian Pineau proposed such a "brain pool" during talks here earlier this week.

Before leaving Idlewild Airport in New York for Rome Sunday Brentano held a surprise meeting with Pineau. The two men evaluated the information they had gathered here on U.S. policies.

range missile would not be very effective," he added. "The lighter we can make these warheads, the easier the job of the missile man is."

The United States, he went on, fell behind Russia because it "waited too long" for the right kind of warhead to be available.

Russia Gambled

Teller said the United States did not embark on a really vigorous program after the war because, as he understands it, officials felt the needed high explosives were not available and they were not sure missiles would be used in the next war.

He said this country has since embarked on "an excellent and an excellently managed program" that came too late.

In contrast, he said, Russia was "willing to take greater gambles" and started its program immediately after World War II.

"We're not taking the risks which, in cold war as in hot war, we must take," he said.

Reciting his view of Soviet achievements, Teller expressed the belief that Russia:

—Has not caught up but is closing the gap in the field of nuclear weapons.

—Is abreast in aircraft.

—Is well ahead in missile development.

Johnson said in his opening statement that the American people were disturbed by the tremendous military and scientific achievements of the Russians.

"Our supremacy and even our equality has been challenged," he said.

The Modern Age

Atlanta (UP)—Georgia Highway patrolmen have sadly put aside their cavalry-style hats in favor of models with a lower crown. Patrol Chief W. C. Dominy said the troopers had trouble getting in and out of the new low-slung cars.

Dog for Sale

FT. LAUDERDALE, Fla. (UP)—Nathaniel Duval's French poodle turned out to be a bust as a watchdog. Thieves carting off $25,000 in cash, jewelry and furs from Duval's home appeased the pooch with dog biscuits.

Msgr. Mihm said, "The man for whom the church prayers are given today would not want a great eulogy because he was a simple man.

"His fruit is in his service to his God, his country, his family and fellow men. He served his country with honesty and integrity for many years."

Continuing, the Msgr. Mihm said:

"Just as his roots were firmly set in his Catholic faith, he made sure that those of his nine children should be so set. . . not only by principle but especially by example, the greatest teacher of them all.

Eight Found Guilty In Turnpike Fraud

HARRISBURG (UP) — Defense attorneys plan appeals for new trials for eight men, mostly from the Scranton area, who were convicted in the Pennsylvania Turnpike conspiracy trial.

The eight were found guilty by a Dauphin County jury Saturday of state charges they tried to defraud the commission of almost one-half million dollars on a mine filling project under the Northeastern Extension in 1955. The jury of six men and six women deliberated only two hours.

Four others had pleaded guilty at the start of the weeklong trial to conspiring to swindle the commission through the issuance of fictitious weight slips by which the commission was billed for sand and silt it did not receive.

The alleged conspiracy revolved around a contract given the Manu-Mine Research and Development Co., Reading, for the actual mine filling work and delivery of the fill material by the Rogers Brothers Construction Co., Scranton.

Those convicted were:

Rogers Brothers—Joseph Rogers of Scranton, co-owner; Robert Havard, West Pittston and Walter Kelas, Clarks Summit.

Manu-Mine inspectors — Roger A. Hines, West Pittston; Evan Moses, Wilkes-Barre; William Lipfert, Tracksville, Francis Chiazza, Carteret, N.J., and Donald H. Burkett, Ashland, chief inspector at the scene of the filling operation.

Pleading guilty earlier were George Oswald, Dunmore, former Rogers Brothers superintendent, and Manu-Mine inspectors Mario Fronduti, Dalton, John Munley, Archbald, and John F. Williams, Clarks Summit.

The trial of David R. Jones, Elkins, W. Va., another Manu-Mine inspector, on similar charges had been postponed because of his illness.

Army Secretary Praises Jupiter Missile

Scoffs at Russian Boasting

WASHINGTON (UP) — Army Secretary Wilber M. Brucker revealed Sunday night he has urged immediate production of the Army's Jupiter intermediate range ballistic missile (IRBM).

He conceded, however, the Defense Department is "justified" in waiting to be sure before it decides whether to choose between the Jupiter and the Air Force Thor or go ahead with both.

Brucker said the nose-cone of a Jupiter "and the process that has made it" have solved the problem of re-entering the earth's atmosphere and the Army can make missiles "with that nose cone now."

He scoffed at Soviet claims to have won the arms race and asserted this country is ahead of Russia in IRBM development. However he defined an IRBM as a 1,500-mile missile and conceded Russia probably is ahead in 800-mile ballistic missiles.

Made TV Appearance

Brucker made the statements on the CBS television program "Face The Nation" amid these other developments in the missile-satellite field:

—The Senate Preparedness Subcommittee planned to begin public hearings today on the U.S. missile race with Russia. Its first scheduled witness, Dr. Edward Teller, "father of the H-bomb," said Sunday night the United States has lost a battle comparable to Pearl Harbor by letting Russia get ahead in the rocket race.

—Dr. Joseph Kaplan, head of the U.S. Committee for the International Geophysical Year, predicted this country will launch an earth satellite before the original target date of March.

—Lockheed Aircraft Corporation has been awarded an Air Force contract to make studies of a reconnaissance satellite which may be built and launched in the early 1960's, according to government sources

Making Economy Check

—The House Government Operations Committee disclosed it has begun an investigation to determine the extent that economy curbs, waste and duplication may have hampered scientific research.

—The Republican National Committee accused the Democrats of reducing U.S. defense to a "dangerously low level" when they were in office.

Brucker claimed the nose cone of a Jupiter-C missile, which was shown to the nation on TV by President Eisenhower, was "the first nose cone that we know of in the world that could . . . reenter the atmosphere and, of course, hit the target."

The U.S. government assumes that the Russians have solved the reentry problem for missiles.

INDICTED ON EXTORTION CHARGES — Vincent Squillante (center) is shown as he and his brother Nunzio (right) and Carmen DeCabia, arrive at the Mineola, N. Y. County Court for a hearing on charges of extortion. Vincent, reputed "czar" of the garbage haulage racket, his brother and DeCabia were arrested after the Nassau County Jury indicted them on extortion charges. Vincent Squillante was released after posting $30,000 bail. The others were freed after posting $10,000 each.

Smokey Gets Wedding Present, but no Wife

WASHINGTON (UP) — Smokey the forest fire fighting bear has received his first wedding present.

The present — somewhat premature—came from an enclave of Smokey Bear admirers who operate out of the fifth grade at Del Valle, Tex. They sent their hero a package of letters and a 49-cent jug of honey — Texas honey, of course.

"Congratulations!" wrote little Jesse Shults. "I hope you will have fun with your wife."

"Happy anniversary!" wrote Lenny Buchner. "I am glad you are getting married."

The whole thing was rather embarrassing. Smokey — the U. S. Forest Service's live symbol of fire prevention—doesn't even have a girl friend yet.

Nickels Pour In

Naturally with the nation's most eligible bachelor bear on the lookout for a bride there's a long line of furry debutantes waiting to be looked out for. But the Forest Service first wants to build Old Smoke a $50,000 ranger station for two. Smokey fans already are pouring in nickels and dimes.

While he's waiting, Smokey occupies a split-level cage at the National Zoo between the cages of a snaggletooth European brown bear and a polar bear whose friends call him Snowball.

Two bear keepers, zoo director Theodore Reed, a Forest Service official and a cameraman presented Smokey the wedding present at his temporary home. Three little boys, two tired-looking mothers, a little girl with an ice cream cone, snaggletooth and Snowball witnessed the big moment.

Just One More

Keeper Bert Barker first stuck the honey jug through the bars and Smokey walked over and stuck his nose into it.

Smokey smacked his lips and took a long pull at the honey jug

"That's Smokey," a mother said to her little boy.

"Where's his hat?" the little boy asked skeptically.

Smokey took a final pull at the jug and walked away.

"Hey, just one more," the cameraman shouted.

Science Research Under Discussion

BETHLEHEM, Pa. (UP) — Recent scientific developments ranging from explosions to how to return to earth from outer space were discussed today at the opening of the Division of Fluid Dynamics of the American Physical Society.

Reports on 57 research studies were to be presented on subjects such as rarefied gasses and explosions, dynamics of compressible fluids, shock and detonation wave phenomena and turbulence phenomena.

Top scientists from the nation's colleges, industrial research laboratories and governmental agencies are scheduled to make reports.

Arthur Kantrowitz, director of the Avco Research Laboratory, Everett, Mass., is to speak tonight on "re-entry into the atmosphere."

Diego Rivera, Mexican Red, Painter, Dies

MEXICO CITY (UP)—Diego Rivera, 71, Mexico's most vocal Communist and one of the world's most brilliant painters, died Sunday night of a heart ailment.

Rivera was one of the most productive and well-known of modern artists and often mixed his paints and his politics.

He was hailed as a genius and scorned as a blasphemer.

Only last year he painted out of a mural in Mexico City the words "Dios no existe" (God does not exist). Because of the words the mural had been kept covered for eight years.

In 1933 he created a storm when he painted Lenin's face into a mural in New York's Rockefeller Center. He refused to paint that one out and the mural was removed.

Royal 'Rift' Reports Dismissed as 'Silly'

LONDON (UP)—Informed palace sources today dismissed as "silly" reports of a rift between Princess Margaret and Queen Elizabeth II over Group Capt. Peter Townsend.

There were reports the 27-year-old princess was "cold shouldering" the queen and Prince Philip by not attending functions with them and that she still wanted to marry Townsend.

The palace sources did not comment officially on the reports but did say the princess "makes her own decisions"—that she is a grown woman who can decide for herself whether she wants to attend various royal functions.

Reports of the rift appeared in the New York Daily News which quoted "friends of the princess" as saying:

"Princess Margaret, still head over heels in love with Peter Townsend, has made a tearful new appeal to her family for permission to marry the divorced commoner . . . She was turned down sympathetically, tactfully and flatly . . . As a result, Meg has begun cold-shouldering her royal duties."

On Sunday Lord Beaverbrook's Daily Express said the princess was cutting out some of her royal engagements to try to lead her own life and that Queen Elizabeth doesn't like it.

The Sunday Express said the princess' frequent absences from royal occasions in the past few weeks have caused "speculation and concern" in Buckingham Palace circles.

It said the queen was "shocked" when Margaret turned up four hours late for the party given Wednesday by Queen Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh to celebrate their tenth wedding anniversary.

Townsend is in South America, one of the stops on the round-the-world tour he began to forget the princess when their romance officially ended Oct. 31, 1955.

Democrats Continue Personal Battling

The Democratic party chairman in Washington County hasn't given up in his continuing battle with Gov. George M. Leader over the appointment of state Highway Department personnel.

Harvey Stuart, embattled county chairman, will meet today with State Chairman Joseph Barr and elected Democratic officials to discuss "party matters."

Stuart said yesterday that he intends to recommend a Washington County man for the position of county superintendent of highways.

It was that job which touched off a dispute between Stuart and the governor three years ago. At that time, Governor Leader appointed Joseph Abate, Smith Twp., over Stuart's objections.

There followed an endurance battle between Stuart and Abate.

Abate lost his job earlier this year and Leslie Brady, a holdover Republican, who had been kept on the payroll as an assistant to Abate, had command on a temporary basis.

About six weeks ago, W. F. Hasenkopf, of Allegheny County, moved into the superintendent's post. Hasenkopf was also reported to have been a Republican holdover.

This change moved Stuart to one of his fiercest attacks. This was at the annual Democratic dinner held October 30 when the county chairman challenged the appointment and asked U. S. Senator Joseph Clark to carry the chairman's displeasure to Governor Leader. Clark was the guest speaker at the dinner, October 30.

Local Forensic Team Cops 22 First Places

Monessen High School walked away with 22 first places in a National Forensic speech tournament Saturday at Derry Twp. Six ribbons for excellence were also awarded the local group.

Jean Buchar and Richard Behrendt both had perfect scores in the extemporaneous speaking division and won blue ribbons. Ann Hutchison and Kenny Andrikovich also won awards in the same division.

Michele Giannini excelled in the dramatic field and Lynne Bonafed won an award in the humorous division.

Others receiving high ratings were Judy DiBuono, Marie Peters, Rosiland Fedorchak, Cecelia Kasper, Dennis Kritsky and Blaine Polosky.

Awards were given to the participants who won three first places in three rounds of competition.

Carolyn Sedey, local NFL director, accompanied the group.

'King of Diamonds' Dies at Age of 77

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (UP) — Sir Ernest Oppenheimer, 77, "king of diamonds" and one of the world's wealthiest mining figures, died today at his home in nearby Brentenhurt.

Sir Ernest was chairman of the Anglo-American Corporation of South Africa and De Beers. He also was president or founder of some 50 mining enterprises in South Africa comprising the world's biggest mining group.

Youth Prevails

STAFFORD, England (UP) — Mrs. Constance Meakin, 82, resigned from the town council Sunday to "make way for a younger person." Her successor is Thomas Giffard, 75.

St. Cajetan Holy Name in Stag Party

There were 100 men present at the stag party held by the Holy Name Society of St. Cajetan Roman Catholic Church on Saturday evening in the church hall.

The affair honored the "old timers" of the society, and as each one entered the hall he was presented with a carnation.

Highlighting the informal social evening was the presentation of a humorous sketch by the members of the executive board. The men enacted a "typical executive board session."

The Rev. Nunzio Pirulli, church pastor, gave a brief talk, and there were selections by the Four Specs, Lions Club quartet. It is composed of Joe Lancas, Walter Labeka, James Tucci and Dave Victoria.

Prizes were awarded to J. Magone and N. Bafile as the "old timers" having the least hair.

Moora teams were formed and the Five M's won the championship.

Refreshments concluded the evening. Carmen Dabiero and John Dodaro were co-chairmen of the event.

State Highways To Get Planning Research Division

HARRISBURG (UP)—The executive board of Gov. George M. Leader's administration has given the green light to establishment of a division of Planning and Research in the state Highways Department.

The new section will be headed by a deputy secretary whose appointment will soon be announced, Leader said.

Highways Secretary Lewis M. Stevens said the projected expansion of the state highway program through federal funds for the interstate road system "makes advisable establisment of this new office."

The new division will emphasie early settlements of rights-of-way, a program for advance acquisition of rights-of-way and protection of present and proposed roads from disfigurement. It will also be in charge of research into the economic effects of the Commonwealth's highway program.

Special Services Are Planned at Salvation Army

Capt. William S. Banks will be conducting special services at the Monessen citadel from Nov. 26 to Dec. 1. The meetings will begin nightly at 7:30 p. m. with the exception of Thursday. The public may attend.

Captain Banks was born in Boston, Mass., and began his work with the Salvation Army when he was 13 years old. He was graduated from the Salvation Army Training College as a probationary lieutenant. He served as an assistant officer at Troy, N. Y., before going as officer in charge to Albany, Oneida, Brooklyn and Yonkers, N. Y. As a hobby Captain Banks studied magic at the National Bible Institute in New York.

Furman Hits 'Cliques'

BEAVER FALLS, Pa. (UP)—Lt. Gov. Roy E. Furman, being boomed in some quarters as a Democratic gubernatorial possibility, said Sunday night we need leadership "that reflects the thinking of the majority and not the thinking of an opinionated, self-serving minority."

Furman, in a speech to the American Slovak Assn. of Beaver County, said the "Democratic Party has always prided itself on being the party of the people. . ."

"To continue in such a capacity, it must not be boxed in politically by dangerous, unilateral authority in the hands of any one persons, clique or coalition," Furman said. "Abuses are inevitable when subject to the frailties of human nature."

The lieutenant governor declared that political bosses "must bow ultimately to rank and file thinking." He said the day is fast approaching when the working membership of a political party "will force curtailment of political absolutism or boss rule."

In an apparent dig at Gov. George M. Leader and Pittsburgh Mayor David L. Lawrence, Furman declared "it is not a healthy thing for a political party when its thinking power is concentrated in a few men."

Leader, Lawrence and Sen. Joseph S. Clark (D-Pa.) have all indicated preference for Philadelphia Mayor Richardson Dilworth as the party's choice in next year's gubernatorial race.

The Streets Belong To the Public

APPARENTLY as a temporary holiday-period concession to Donner Ave. merchants, the city has replaced the parking meters on the north side of Donner between Fourth and Sixth Sts. At the same time, it is announced that the meters will be removed again after Christmas and one-side parking restored.

This does not seem to us to be sound traffic management. Nor do we think it reflects a proper concern for the general public.

Merchants undoubtedly have a legitimate interest in parking arrangements. But theirs certainly is not the only interest; nor is it the primary interest. The streets are public property, and their use should be regulated accordingly.

The experiment of permitting parking on only one side of Donner Ave. in the main business district as recommended by all the traffic experts who have advised the city was a decided success from the public's point of view. It virtually ended the annoying and costly traffic jams in that important street and brought about a dramatic increase in the use of the new parking plaza.

The only objections we have heard came from a few merchants who persist in the mistaken belief that the streets are primarily parking lots and who think that somehow business can be improved by traffic jams.

We are sorry to see our city officials swayed by this sort of pressure. If the future of downtown Monessen is to be planned with somebody's cash register rather than the convenience of the general public as the guage, then that future may not be very bright.

We insist that the streets are for moving traffic first and for parking after that. By reversing this order to accomodate some special interest, the city is violating a basic principle. And it is jeopardizing a public investment of over $350,000 in parking facilities intended specifically to take parked cars off the streets.

Make It Soon

THE PEOPLE of Westmoreland County are soon to be faced with the solemn responsibility of choosing a representative in Congress to success Congressman Augustine B. Kelley, whose death occurred last week and who was buried in Arlington National Cemetery today.

This is one vacancy which can never be filled by appointment. The House of Representatives is always directly elected by the people. And this vacancy, occurring in the middle of a session of Congress, will be filled in a special election the date of which will be designated by the governor, probably this week.

Governor Leader may be inclined for economy reasons to designate the date of the May primary as the date of the special congressional election. But while the law permits him to do this and while a separate election would cost about $25,000, we feel the election should be held at the earliest practical date.

Not to do this would mean that Westmoreland County would be without representation in the House for several months during what promises to be one of the most important sessions of Congress since World War II. When the 85th Congress reconvenes in January it will be faced with some serious decisions, many of which will involve the very safety of the nation.

It would be wrong, we believe, to deny this large and economically important district representation during this period, even to save $25,000. We hope Gov. Leader agrees.

Guns and Boys

ANOTHER tragic case which is in the local news just now demonstrates an old truth—boys and guns are a potentially dangerous combination.

We realize that many parents, especially fathers, feel that they are doing their sons a service by acquainting them with the proper use of firearms at an early age. And it is undoubtedly true that target practice and hunting have provided many a father and son with a hobby which they share to the advantage of both.

But there is one all-important element in the use of firearms that no amount of careful instruction can instill in the average boy. And that is maturity of judgment.

Lack of this maturity is the cause of many tragedies and perhaps of the one about which we have been reading here recently. It should be taken into the most careful consideration by all parents who see some value in the use of guns by their children.

Merry-Go-Round—

Sen. Johnson Pulls Punches On Probes

By DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON — When likeable Sen. Lyndon Johnson of Texas calls a galaxy of brass-hat experts on missiles and satellites to testify before the TV cameras and the Senate Preparedness Committee today, he will begin one of the most important Senate probes in years. It is vital to the defense of the nation.

Mr. Pearson

But some of Lyndon's colleagues, who in the past have given him the nickname "Lyin Down Lyndon," have their fingers crossed regarding the final result. They figure Lyndon will start off with real fireworks, but they are not sure what will happen after the first week of hearings.

Reason for their skepticism is Johnson's pattern of probing in the past. For some time he has been chairman of the Senate Preparedness Committee, yet he has held no very important probes in recent years. And when he did run into two dynamite-laden scandals he suppressed the facts.

One was his investigation of gangsterism on the New Jersey waterfront where the U.S. Army lost millions of dollars by hiring gangsters. Johnson never did publish this report, even fired the two investigators, Downey Rice and George Martin, who prepared it.

General Motors Profits

The other was his probe of airplane profits, showing that the Allison Motors Division of General Motors made Sabrejet engines for the Air Force in 1950-51 at a profit of 39 per cent. They did this by carrying a 10 or 12 per cent profit by one GM subsidiary, then a profit by the next GM subsidiary, then another profit by the third GM subsidiary.

While lagging far behind in Sabrejet production, General Motors executives had time to get houses and barns built for themselves at cost by a construction company doing business for the government — Huber, Hunt, and Nichols.

Daniel Babcock, chief engineer for GM's Allison Division, got a $31,000 home built for $15,800. Edward B. McNeil, a GM vice president, got an air-conditioning system installed at cost — $3,890.18. GM official I.E. Settle got a barn built at cost.

All these facts were censored.

Johnson's investigation of the New Jersey waterfront likewise was suppressed, though later Gov. Dewey's crime commission revealed some of the shocking facts.

Johnson's probers found that after the Army took over Jersey City's Claremont Terminal, dock workers played poker on Army time, shot dice, bribed, pilfered, peddled dope, and amused themselves by crashing Army forklifts into each other-all under the nose of the Army Engineers.

The Army contract with Dade Brothers, Inc., was so lucrative that in four weeks alone Dade Brothers pocketed a profit of $281,876.33, according to Johnson's investigators.

The night hiring boss in charge of loading Army cargo was John Denoia alias Johnny Duke, former proprietor of Duke's Tavern, underworld hangout for Joe Adonis, Anthony Anastasia and Willie Moretti.

Senate investigators for Johnson checked the Dade Brothers payroll against rogues' gallery photographs and discovered more than 30 so-called longshoremen with criminal records.

Cooperative Johnson

Sen. Johnson, however, never made this report public. He showed it to the Army and told them to clean up. In this way the Army was saved embarrassing publicity. But underworld conditions on the New Jersey waterfront continued. Johnson made no effort to turn the healthy spotlight of publicity on this situation and his report gathered dust in Senate files until some of his Senate colleagues asked about it after Gov. Dewey's crime commission started a real cleanup.

Johnson claims he can get more accomplished by quietly going to the armed services when he finds something wrong and asking them to clean up. Frequently this works. Invariably also, the grateful armed services will do anything under the sun for the thoughtful Lyndon after one of these quiet talks — such as giving him free airplane rides back and forth to Texas, or putting the Air Medical Research Center at Randolph Field, Texas, after Secretary of the Air Force Talbott had ruled that it was to be elsewhere.

The delay and paperwork involved in switching the Medical Center cost the taxpayers around $100,000. But Lyndon's heart beats for Texas and he got the Center located right in the heart of Texas.

Missile Go-Round

Republicans on the Senate Preparedness Committee have already pretty much decided that Charlie Wilson will take the rap for the missile snafu. They figure this will keep the scandal from going any higher up.

'It's Always Springtime in Paris'

From Texas—

What Is South Thinking?

By ROSCOE DRUMMOND

FORT WORTH — What are the most thoughtful and moderate Southern leaders saying to Southerners about public-school integration in the South?

Indeed, since the horrible shock of the use of federal troops at Little Rock, have the Southern moderates — most of whom deplore the decision of the Supreme Court but abhor violation of the law more — been driven to cover and shushed to silence?

Mr. Drummond

Not all; not by any means. There are still such voices addressing their pleas to the wisdom of their fellow-Southerners not to allow the South to make, in their words, "another tragic mistake."

I had read about such frank, outspoken speech in the leading editorial in "The Arizona Daily Star" of Tucson as my plane put down en route from Los Angeles to Fort Worth. Here "The Star's" widely esteemed, world traveled, conservative editor, W. R. Mathews, was describing some honest counsel by a Southerner to Southerners as "calm," "candid," "forthright," "respected," and "worthy."

He was referring to Dr. Walter Prescott Webb, a noted author, historian and member of the staff of the University of Texas, a state which, however wide its geography, is as Southern as any of the states of the Deep South.

'Mistake' of 1860

And what had Dr. Webb been saying to his neighbors, to his fellow educators and to his fellow Southerners? This is what he had been saying — without scolding but without apology:

"The South tried to escape the inevitable once and has suffered from it ever since. It cannot afford to make the same mistake twice. It cannot afford to be diverted by a cause already lost."

He went on to explain:

"If in 1860 the South had looked at the world, it would have seen that history had passed it by. Chattel slavery had been abolished almost throughout the Western world. The South was already but a tiny island of slavery in a rising sea of freedom of sorts. The inundation was inevitable.

"Today the South finds itself in the same position. Again history has passed it by, this time in reference to educational practice. Nowhere else in the Western world, which is one community, with the exception of parts of Africa, is there such discrimination as the South has used and continues to use in some places. Again it is an island in a rising sea and again the inundation is inevitable."

Reasons Given

These are the reasons why Dr. Webb is warning that the South must deal constructively and realistically with the racial question and must avoid being divided politically from the rest of the nation.

These are the reasons why Dr. Webb, speaking as a Southerner and not as a displaced arrival from the North, says that the South must in its own interests "accept the decision of the Supreme Court, however deliberate its speed."

Dr. Webb is not trekking North to win the easy plaudits of his audiences. He is speaking as a Southerner to Southern audiences, his latest address being delivered to the Southern Historial Association.

This is why Mr. Matthews in "The Arizona Daily Star" expresses the conviction that "the South, speaking through its own progressive sons, can be trusted to move steadily toward a solution of this vexing problem. . . and will find a solution to this problem under the law."

Use of Troops Regretted

The question which I have most frequently been asked by audiences in the South is, in varying versions, this: "What do you think the nation as a whole feels about the use of federal troops in Little Rock?" It seems to me the answer is:

"Most people, I think, profoundly regret the necessity of using federal troops in Little Rock, and the man who regrets it most of all is Dwight Eisenhower. But bear in mind that the initiative was not the President's; the first to use force was not the President. The initiative to use force came from the governor of the state. When a choice had to be made whether or not to condone the use of state force to prevent the execution of an order of a federal court dealing with federal law no other choice was open to the President. I believe that the President and the nation hope it will never be necessary again."

Vegetarians Plan a Thanksgiving Dinner

By DOC QUIGG

NEW YORK (UP)—Tasty tidbits for Turkeytide:

The Vegetarian Society of New York will hold its 26th annual Thanksgiving Day dinner for more than 200 of the faithful with the following menu:

Vegetable soup, large green salad, lentil nut roast with two vegetables, baked potatoes, raw apple pie with uncooked whole wheat dough and ground almond butter, fresh fruits, coffee substitute or peppermint tea, fruit candies.

Why do vegetarians make a point of holding a Thanksgiving Day dinner? The answer is provided by Mrs. Meta Ferreira, secretary of the society.

"We vegetarians don't want to go to our families and make them feel uncomfortable ourselves, so we get together as one big family, young and old, and partake of nature's vegetable gifts."

What is a lentil roast? Well, says Mrs. Ferreira, you put the lentils through a liquefier and they come out in a consistency similar to that of baby food and then through some process known to the chef they are molded into a roast that can be cut when cooked.

Word has oozed back east that a peppermint - striped toothpaste is being test-marketed in a middle western area.

The report is that the striping is accomplished with tiny plastic containers built into the neck of the tube. They stripe the paste with a red, mint-flavored dye as you squeeze.

If this stuff tastes as good as it sounds, there could be a tendency among small fry not only to brush after every meal but to make a meal out of every brush.

Paul Gilbert, the filthy capitalist who used Communist satellite radio waves to trigger the apparatus that lighted up a big new electric billboard advertising liquor in Manhattan, fears that a Soviet publication has called his action unfair.

What Gilbert did was hitch the first Russian Sputnik to some old-fashioned American publicity ingenuity. He used the short wave gadgets of the RCA communications receiving station at Riverhead, N.Y., to pick up the beep-beep signals of Sputnik I and let them activate the splash of light that was the sign's debut.

A public relations man, Gilbert was seeking to call attention to a new brand of Scotch whisky. Numerous newspaper editorials later applauded his ingenuity, but now he hears that Pravda, the organ of the Communist Party, disapproves. He says that if it'll make them any happier, he'll be glad to use any future Sputnik signals to light a vodka sign.

Nixon Again Shows His Political Sense

By LYLE C. WILSON

WASHINGTON, (UP) — The political crisis which burst around the Eisenhower administration when it was caught with its Sputniks down is proving again that Vice President Richard M. Nixon knows the game of politics and how to play it.

That is a matter of considerable importance because Nixon is likely to be nominated by the Republicans for president in 1960. Political know-how of a high order will be necessary if the Republican nominee is to be elected.

Sputnik I soared into space on Oct. 4. The high order of Nixon's political know-how in this crisis first was indicated on Oct. 16 when he took the first reasonable opportunity to sound the alarm.

Initial White House reaction had been press secretary James C. Hagerty's statement on Oct. 5 that the Russian satellite "did not come as any surprise" to the administration. Four days later, the President told a news conference the successful launching did not raise his apprehensions by "one iota" about national security.

Ridicules Rocket Effort

On Oct. 15 White House chief of staff Sherman Adams ridiculed the Russian rocket effort as a play for "high score in an outer space basketball game."

The next day, Nixon warned a San Francisco audience against any brush - off of the Russian achievement in rocketry. He called Sputnik I "a grim and timely reminder" of the great magnitude of the Soviet Union's scientific and industrial capacity.

That became the new administration party line on Sputnik I and Sputnik II, with hi-fido aboard, made it even more emphatic.

How seriously the administration now assesses the meaning of the Sputniks is indicated by talk of diverting farm, housing or veterans' benefit funds to stepped-up U.S. rocketry. The political heat is on. It has been on since the first satellite went up and the administration now is well aware of that fact.

During the fortnight or so that the White House seemed unimpressed by the Russian achievement, the old timers around town were remarking that seldom had so few been out of step with so many. The so many were the public whose imaginations and fears had been plumbed by the beginning of the space age.

Truman Speaks Out

There were some pious Democratic pledges that nobody on their side would try to make political hay out of the Sputnik crisis. But they were demanding to know, too, the whys and whos of responsibility for the failure to have a U. S. satellite in the air.

Former President Harry S. Truman, who knows a good political thing when he sees it, said the Truman administration missile program was "broken up after I left."

Nixon counter - attacked last week with a charge that the U.S. trails Russia in missiles because of a "calculated decision" during Truman's administration.

Republican National Chairman Meade Alcorn immediately followed the Nixon lead in speeches delivered last week in Maine and Pennsylvania. Alcorn came up with spending figures designed to show that it was Truman, not Eisenhower, who cut back the missile program.

There is going to be a big election year dispute in 1958 about rocketry, missiles and national defense.

Nixon and Alcorn are moving now to compel the Democrats to answer charges of neglect instead of making such charges against the Republicans.

The Woman's View—

Something Fishy in New Millinery Styles

By GAY PAULEY

NEW YORK (UP)—Okay, fellows. You can quit laughing at some of those things we've been calling hats. For you ain't seen nothin' yet!

A 27-year-old milliner named William J. just previewed his summer sports collection. And the word is, if it swims we will wear it. The designer, a self - styled "mad hatter," comes up with some fishy specimens, even if the fins are felt and the scales are sequins.

"These hats are for fun, done with style," said William J. "But I do make serious hats. My fun hats are for the young in heart. Leslie Caron, Margaret O'Brien and Audrey Hepburn are my customers."

The milliner, Boston-born, Harvard-educated and fairly new to the New York design scene, showed beach hats shaped like octopus, lobster, dolphin and other denizens of the deep. He even supplies the hooks. (Girl supplies bait).

Yard-Wide Octopus

His octopus, a yard wide, is mostly of bright orange straw, but has eyes of beaver felt with jet-bead centers. Tentacles have black velvet tips and the milliner declared these wind around milady's head in a most fetching manner.

"Hats have just been too sedate; that's what's wrong with the millinery business," said the designer, hauling forth a lobster. This number, in straw, measured about three feet, with claws draped toward the wearer's face. The tail drapes to the back, like a streamer.

"One of my favorites is this pink sailer," said William J. It was prosaic enough at first look, but second showed a pliable line dangling from it. On the end: a four-foot long fish in pink and red felt.

Fisherman's Basket

Another hat copied a fisherman's basket — "with compartments for packing your beach lunch," he said. At the fashion show, the model pulled out a silver fox fur instead.

His "mermaid" collection featured something new in hat materials—aluminum woven to look life fine braid. He also has a group of hats for lady golfers.

These carried out the sports theme with such decorations as a bobbing golf ball on a spring. One, he dubbed the "19th hole." It featured a gold - embroidered bar scene.

William J. said the wearer need not worry about keeping these "fun" hats on. Each is built with bandeaux or other interior equipment for a firm fit.

The designer, born William J. Cunningham, now runs two firms. The other, bearing the Cunningham name, produces the "serious" hats he mentioned.

"I make more money as William J.," he said.

Last year, the designer startled the millinery industry with a collection of outsize fruit and vegetable hats for the beach. What's for the future?

"Oh, probably something to do with outer space," he said.

Members of the congregation brought letters which they had written to persons who had proven to be friends throughout the years. They were consecrated at the altar and after the service mailed to those for whom they were intended.

Speaking of Beauty

"DOES SHE . . . OR DOESN'T SHE?"

By James V. Bonafed

Does She . . . or Doesn't She?

. . . "Only her hairdresser knows for sure!" This is the advertising slogan of one of the largest manufacturers in our industry—and it refers to hair colour. You've no doubt seen it, in your fashion magazines, above the picture of a young lady quite like you . . . casual in appearance, pretty in a natural way. Not dressed for a ball, her hair fashioned into an extreme "do". But dressed for a supermarket visit, or taking the children to school!

**

This is the New Outlook

Hair colour, today, is no longer so obvious that others know whether you wear it . . . or whether you don't. And, for that matter, it's no longer a subject of conjecture for those around you either! You'll probably note that the lady whose "artificial" colour is whispered about is the lady who does her own — and she seldom achieves the look she was really hoping for! But I could really surprise you, by running down a list of attractive women who are our regular customers for hair colour — a rinse or a "permanent" shade. You can't usually tell it's coloured . . . when it's professionally done!

We Hate the Word "Dye"!

Have you noticed that we'll wince, when you speak of "dying" hair? That's because we no longer think of hair colour as "dye". That word, bless it, was reserved for the long-ago days when Egyptian ladies used ox-blood and henna. Today, the colour which a professional beauty salon uses has a foundation of pure vegetable colouring . . . as safe and gentle as the vegetable color you use in a cake! Naturally, there are chemicals as well. They give the colour its lasting beauty . . . so that you won't "fade" after you leave the salon!

So Many Do It . . . Why Not You?

I have one customer who's been exotically auburn-haired so many happy years, her own husband actually never has seen her own dull brown "real" shade! (But he admits he first fell in love with her because she was so "different" and so exciting to look at.) Then there's the successful young secretary who landed a better job two days after we first brightened her "dishwater" tresses. "It gave me so much more confidence. I asked for the job!" she says.) All about you there are girls from 16 to 80 who are counting hair colour as a regular part of their beauty service. They've found it doesn't just improve their looks — it makes living more fun!

**

Dull hair is dowdy, old-fashioned. Bright hair denotes a bright woman! Next time you visit, why not ask us to perform this magic for you?

Relations Becoming 'Strained'

This is being written under the assumption that Monessen and Brownsville have finally found a mutual accord on playing their postponed grid tilt . . . We sincerely hope so for it appears relations were becoming strained and considering that Donora and Redstone have already pushed relations to the breaking point over their postponement we would hate to see any more disagreement among valley schools . . . MHS Principal Henry Furio brought us up to date on the negotiations since the first day the schools tried to get together, and what a "rigamaroll"! . . . For instance the game was originally set for Friday, Oct. 11, then postponed until Monday because of the flu epidemic hitting Brownsville. Came Monday and the flu still hadn't left Brownsville.

* * *

It was then decided to play the game whenever mutually agreeable to both schools, then suggested it be cancelled, and again Brownsville asked not to cancel . . . Monessen suggested Thanksgiving, Brownsville preferred not to play on Thanksgiving . . . Finally a series of mailing contracts back and forth ensued until local officials suggested a Monday, Wednesday or Thursday date this week but Thursday was immediately ruled out by Brownsville and that's how the situation stood until the issue was finally settled . . . Here's hoping next grid season turns out to be just a plain ordinary season with nothing to worry about but the weather on game nights, injuries to key players, strength of opponents, etc.

Craft May Get Best of Tiger Deal

Manager Harry Craft of the Kansas City Athletics, who started his baseball career here, may come up with the best player in that big 13-player deal with the Tigers and the athlete in question has hardly received a mention in publicity blurbs. He's Jim Small, 20-year-old outfielder who hits from the left side . . . Baseball "guessperts" tab him a "sleeper" who is about due to wake up . . . A couple of seasons ago Jack Wiley, the former Steeler star, now an assistant coach at Pitt, told us that while he was coaching at Waynesburg he had one of the finest football players he had even seen in Crawford Beazell, who starred at Monongahela High in the early 50's . . . Well, here's good news for Jack, there's now another (John) Crawford Beazell, born last Sunday, Nov. 17 at Monongahela . . . Mom is Nancy Gibson, a drum majorette atop Wildcat Knoll when "Krauf" was cavorting on the gridiron.

Nemacolin Country Club's board of directors will again be headed by J. K. Clark of Charleroi, who was re-elected president of the board last week . . . Also chosen to serve again are C. L. Moore, of Washington, vice president and W. D. League, of Brownsville, secretary and treasurer. . . . Dr. John Gordon of Belle Vernon is also a member of the board of directors . . . Chuck Zolak, quarterback star at Rostraver Junior High last season, is regarded as a sure-fire bet to assume the QB duties at Donora next year. His family moved from Webster to Donora this past summer to get him into a Big Five school.

Anterless Deer Licenses 'Gone'

Pennsylvania's State Game Commission said today that licenses for the anterless deer season, which begins Dec. 16, have been exhausted in over 40 of the 67 counties of the state, including Westmoreland, Fayette and Washington . . . Some were still available in Greene County last week. . . . The three-day doe season follows immediately upon the closing of the regular buck season in Pennsylvania . . . When Dr. Michael Duda, former Monessen Superintendent of Schools, now president of California Teachers College, spoke before Glassport Rotary the other night he was highlighting one of the few football banquets ever held before the season had ended as the Gladiators had a game with Wilmerding remaining.

Erdelatz Says Navy Has Fun Playing Football

By OSCAR FRALEY

NEW YORK (UP) — Fearless Fraley's facts and figures:

Navy will be the favorite over Army in this weekend's service academy football classic and, according to Middie coach Eddie Erdelatz, one of the biggest reasons has to be that "this team is more relaxed and has more fun than any team with which I was ever associated."

This crop of future admirals is a wise-cracking, fun-loving bunch which always has the bright quip ready. Once, during a chalk talk for the California game, the scout advised them that one rival was half-ambidextrous.

"You know what that means?" he kidded.

"Sure," one of the Middies replied. "It means he runs equally well with both feet."

Figured on Pay-TV

Walter O'Malley of the Dodgers and Horace Stoneham of the Giants figured heavily on pay-TV when they moved their ball clubs to Los Angeles and San Francisco respectively. But a poll of 45,000 readers by TV Guide shows that 96 per cent are against subscription TV—with the most opposition coming from the West Coast.

In Los Angeles, where the city administration has approved franchises for pay-TV systems, only 3.51 per cent of the voters favored pay-TV... which means that 96.49 per cent were against it...

Picking All-America teams can be mighty silly but you have to slow down and listen when a team such as the University of Pittsburgh names its all-opponent best. The Panthers tabbed Oklahoma's Clendon Thomas as the hardest runner to stop and also named as "great" Army's Bob Anderson, Oregon's Jim Shanley, Duke guard Roy Hord and Syracuse end Dick Lasse . .

Horse Food Costly

The next time you complain about the high price of hamburg and black-eyed peas, be thankful you don't "eat like a horse." Horace Wade at Gulfstream Park reports that it costs $12 a day to feed and train a thoroughbred, not counting shoeing, veterinarian fees, medicines, jockey fees and shipping. The nag which doesn't win a race all year is really in trouble—and, I know a lot of 'em...

The National Golf Foundation reports that 160 new golf courses were opened in 1957, topping any year since World War II. There are another 289 courses under construction and 758 courses in the planning stage. Meanwhile, there were 3,500,000 more 18-hole rounds this year than in 1956 with women's play up 15 per cent and junior play up 20 per cent over the previous year.

Benny Friedman, the former Michigan great now coaching at Brandeis University for the 10th year, says he is in a unique coaching spot.

Brandeis has only been playing football for seven years on an intercollegiate basis and has graduated only six teams.

"We have very few alumni at the moment," Benny grins. "This means, naturally, that the coach isn't on much of a hot seat."

Jefferson's Midget Champions Honored

"Select a sports hero and then imitate him" was the advice offered to members of the championship Jefferson Midget League football team last night.

"There are many lessons to be learned from sports," continued Thomas Preston, former educator and long-time Monessen High School athletic director. "But in your desire to excel as an athlete, do not overlook your school work.

The championship footballers received similar advice at their banquet in the Slovak Home from Dr. Joseph Pallone, superintendent of Monessen schools, and Armand Niccolai, MHS football coach.

Offering congratulations to the Jefferson team were coaches of the other three MFL entries: Alex Kachmarik of Frank-Lin; Dale Simpson of Lincoln and Bucky Lutes of Vocational.

Only Three State Teams Boast of Unbeaten Cards

By UNITED PRESS

The football season was over today for most of Pennsylvania's college teams with only three — West Chester, Lock Haven and Juniata — boasting spotless records.

Juniata won its seventh straight this year and 12th straight over a two year span by downing Ursinus, 42-7, Saturday as Bill Berrier scored three touchdowns and four conversions. His twin brother, Jim, also scored on a 92-yard run and Bob Schwalenberg tossed three scoring passes.

West Chester and Lock Haven had ended their seasons last week. West Chester with 14 straight, nine this year, and Lock Haven with 11 straight, including eight this season.

In the state's big game of the week, the Pittsburgh Panthers struck for two quick touchdowns in the final period and Norton Seaman, a third string guard from India, kicked the deciding conversion to edge Penn State, 14-13.

The victory snapped a four-game losing streak for Pitt and gave the Panthers a 4-5 record. Penn State, which virtually lost all hopes for a Gator Bowl bid, suffered its third defeat in nine starts.

Lehigh, beaten only by Virginia Military this year, defeated Lafayette, 26-13, in the 93rd game of college football's longest rivalry before more than 17,000 at Bethlehem. Dan Nolan, the engineers' spectacular quarterback, broke two more Lehigh passing records in leading his team to its second straight Middle Three championship. Nolan completed five passes for a record season total of 57 and gained 47 yards on options to set a new Lehigh passing-rushing yardage mark of 1,140.

Villanova found a snow-slushed field to its liking and defeated Wichita, 24-6, as halfback Davy Parr ended his collegiate career with three touchdown sprints of 28, 81 and 53 yards. Leon Horin scored the Wildcat's other touchdown on a one-yard plunge as his team ended its season with a 3-6 record.

Susquehanna University handed winless Dickinson its seventh straight defeat, 25-14, as Dick Purnell scored one touchdown and passed for another. Temple lost its sixth in seven starts by bowing to Buffalo, 13-6. National Aggies rolled up a 19-0 halftime lead and coasted to a 40-12 win over C. W. Post, for a 6-1 record.

Lincoln defeated Howard, 8-0, to win the 52nd renewal of the oldest Negro college football rivalry.

BIG ED WALSH

Ed Walsh pitched his last game for the Chicago White Sox 41 years ago but he still holds seven club records including most games won (40-1908), single season strikeouts (269) and most shutouts for a season (12). From 1904 to 1916, he won 195 games and lost 127 for the White Sox and pitched a no-hitter against the Red Sox in 1911.

Whatever happened to Ed Walsh? Today, at 76, he lives in retirement at Pompano Beach, Fla., and insists "the trouble with baseball now is not enough good pitchers...too many .300 hitters ...too many home runs because the ball parks are shorter."

Total Believed Tops At Local Stadium; To Play Brownies

Monessen and Hempfield High Schools' grid teams engaged in what is believed to be the highest scoring game ever played at Memorial Stadium here Saturday afternoon with the visitors coming out on the long end of a fantastic 46-41 count.

The locals rallied from a 32-14 half-time deficit and completely out-played Hempfield the second half but the huge lead was too large to overcome.

Kenny Bronson, Greyhound halfback, covered himself with glory as he raced to five touchdowns, two of them on laterals from teammates and two on passes. His lone solo effort was a dash around end from the one in the second period to climax a drive.

First Play of Game

Ken Gaudi, Hempfield fullback, seemed on his way to breaking the game wide open in the first period when he went 60 yards off tackle on the first scrimmage play of the game with only 40 seconds gone in the contest.

He added another about three minutes later when he went off tackle and almost exactly duplicated his first effort as he rambled 63 yards to paydirt. Extra point attempts by Quarterback Ed Johns were blocked after both the first touchdowns.

Monessen got back into the game immediately after Gaudi's second scoring dash when Dan Barton hit Bronson on a pass play which covered 59 yards on the first scrimmage play after the ensuing kickoff. Barton then booted the first of five straight extra points for a 12-7 count.

But Hempfield came back just before the end of the first period and tallied again when Johns found end Bill Hayes with a 14-yard pass to climax a drive after a Monessen fumble gave the Spartans the ball.

After that it almost took an adding machine to keep track of the touchdowns which went something like this:

SECOND PERIOD: Sonny Kreul made it a 25-7 Hempfield, when he raced 61 yards to paydirt after Monessen had again fumbled the ball away. Ten plays later halfback Ken Franklin shot off tackle and raced 77 yards for a 31-7 count, the extra point attempt stopped again. Just before the halftime intermission, Bronson cracked over from the one and Barton added the extra point to climax a 70-yard Monessen drive. Halftime score 32-14.

THIRD PERIOD: Shortly after the second half kickoff the Greyhounds moved to three straight first downs, then Barton swept around end from the four on a keeper, lateraling to Bronson just before he crossed the white stripe when he (Barton) feared he was stepping out of bounds. Score 32-31, after Barton's kick for the point - after. Hempfield quickly had the count up to 38-21 when Johns found end Bob Grant with a play covering 40 yards and Johns kicked the extra point. Just as the third period ended Gaudi had his third touchdown of the game when he crossed from the one after Monessen had again fumbled the ball away. Franklin passed to Kruel for the extra point. Score 46-21.

FOURTH PERIOD: All Monessen as the 'Hounds scored immediately after the kickoff following Gaudi's third TD as Barton squirted around end on another keeper and went 30 yards into touchdown land, then booted the extra point for a 46-27 score. Near the end of the quarter after Monessen had driven to three first downs, lost the ball on a fumble and regained it on a punt return, Carl Payne, sub quarterback and Bronson, teamed on a 51-yard touchdown pass play, Barton again kicked the point. On the last play of the game Barton passed to Dennis O'Toole who lateraled to Bronson when O'Toole was trapped and Bronson raced for the score, the play covering 60 yards. Barton's kick was blocked as the game ended with the count reading a fabulous 46-41.

Hempfield gained 341 yards from scrimmage the first half but the 'Hounds held the visitors to only 45 the second half. First downs favored Monessen, 22-14.

Panthers Hoping To Break Even With Miami Win

PITTSBURGH (UP)—The University of Pittsburgh pointed toward Miami University today in hopes of a break-even season, which to date has fallen short of expectations.

The Panthers had dropped four games in a row until Saturday when they had to come from behind to edge Penn State, 14-13. They now own a 4-5 slate and a win over the Hurricanes would give them a .500 average.

The victory over the Lions saved the Panther season from becoming a complete bust. Penn State was under consideration for a possible bowl bid as late as the fourth quarter Saturday when the Panthers suddenly exploded to wipe out a 13-0 deficit.

To score the winning point, third-string guard Norton Seaman, who was born in India, had to kick twice. Seaman's first conversion was good, but Pitt had five men in the backfield. He tried again from the 14-yard line and again split the uprights to bury State's bowl hopes.

The Panthers have two weeks to prepare for the Dec. 7 battle with the Hurricanes at Miami, Fla.

Packers Virtually Eliminate Steelers From Title Race

PITTSBURGH (UP)—The Pittsburgh Steelers were virtually eliminated as a contender in the NFL Eastern Division Sunday by an alert Green Bay Packer team.

The Packers, in last place in the Western Division, took advantage of Steeler miscues which they promptly turned into scores for a 27-10 victory. Pittsburgh fumbled five times, with the Packers recovering three of the bobbles.

Green Bay, led by hard-plunging fullback Howie Ferguson who never played college football, made all of its touchdowns in the third quarter on the ground. Fred Cone converted three times and hit on two field goals.

The Steelers scored first when Gary Glick booted a 17-yard field goal in the second period after missing one in the opening quarter. End Jack McClairen made his first touchdown in three years of from quarterback Earl Morrall in pro ball by taking a 14-yard fling the third quarter. McClairen also caught four other passes to boost his season record to 36.

Quarterback Bart Starr scored first on a sneak from the one. Ferguson then rolled 40 yards through a broken field for the second tally and quarterback Babe Parilli swept right end for the final score.

Cone, after missing an attempt from the 22 in the first period, kicked his two field goals in the final quarter.

Jack Butler, on the last play of the game, intercepted a Parilli p s in the end zone to boost his margin to nine for the season.

Eastern Pro Grid League Planned; No 'Farm' Loop

NEW YORK (UP) — Representatives from Brooklyn, Jersey City, Philadelphia, Buffalo, Rochester and Syracuse held an eight-hour meeting Saturday to discuss forming an Eastern Professional Football League.

Ronald Morgan of Rochester, spokesman for the group, said the league hoped to begin playing in 1958 or 1959 and would not ask for a working agreement with the National Football League.

"We don't want a working agreement with the National Football League because we don't want to be a farm system for anyone," Morgan said. "We think there are enough players who don't make National League teams to give us a great deal of talent.

"Each team will operate on an annual budget of about $200,000. We have been working on formation of this league for two months now and this was our third meeting."

Westminster fell from the blue ribbon ranks Saturday by playing a scoreless tie with Colorado Mines; Lincoln lost to Tennessee State, 26-6, and Hampden-Sydney was defeated by Sewanee, 25-6.

Army-Navy Tops List Of College Showdowns

By JOHN GRIFFIN

The drama of the Army-Navy game, with a possible bowl bid at stake, sets the style for a double-barrelled program of showdown games winding up the 1957 college football season this week.

With Duke officially named Sunday as Oklahoma's rival in the Orange Bowl at Miami, Fla., four major bowl berths still are to be filled and, in addition, this week's games on either Thursday or Saturday will determine five major conference champions.

Still to be picked are both teams in the Cotton and Sugar Bowls and the champs in the Southeastern, Southwest, Southern, Skyline, and Border Leagues.

After a formful Saturday when only one of the nation's top 10 teams, ninth-ranked Notre Dame, was beaten (and then by eighth-ranked Iowa, 21-13), here's how the major bowls are lining up:

Rose—Ohio St. vs. Oregon
Orange—Oklahoma vs. Duke
Cotton — Rice or Texas A&M vs. Navy or Mississippi
Sugar — Rice or Texas A&M vs. Mississippi.

Key Games Coming Up

Three games will probably settle all four bowl bids. Texas A&M (4-1-0) meets Texas on Thursday's Turkey Day card and Rice (also 4-1-0) meets Baylor Saturday. If both contenders win, they tie for the Southwest Conference crown and Rice goes to Cotton with the Aggies probably to the Sugar. If one wins while the other loses, winner gets title and Cotton Bowl berth, loser probably gets Sugar.

Meanwhile, Navy is expected to get and accept the other Cotton Bowl spot if it beats Army in Philadelphia's big game Saturday. Also at stake in what promises to be a high-powered game is the Lambert Trophy, emblematic of Eastern grid supremacy.

Mississippi — certain for a bowl game — will take the Southeastern Conference if it beats Mississippi State Saturday and bowl-ineligible Auburn loses to Alabama.

For the other league titles: VMI can clinch the Southern Conference by beating Virginia Tech; Utah can clinch the Skyline by beating Utah State Thursday, and Arizona (Tempe) St. needs to beat Arizona to avoid a border title tie with West Texas State.

Seek Perfect Records

Auburn and Arizona State both will be trying to finish as the nation's only major unbeaten and untied teams. All told, the "perfect record" list now is down to 16 teams 13 of which have ended their seasons.

In last Saturday's action:

Yale trounced Harvard 54-0 and Princeton took the Ivy League title with its 34-14 win over Dartmouth. Oregon State gained a tie for the Pacific Coast Conference crown by upsetting Oregon, 10-7 and North Carolina rallied from a two-touchdown deficit to upset Duke, 21-13.

Michigan State the nation's No. 1 team, fumbled 13 times but downed Kansas State, 27-9; second-ranked Ohio State ended a perfect Big Ten season with a 31-14 rout of Michigan; third-ranked Auburn easily downed Florida State, 29-7; and fifth-ranked Oklahoma rebounded from its loss to Notre Dame to trounce Nebraska 32-7. Other teams in the top 10 were idle.

After this week, only two top games remain to be played next week—Pittsburgh at Miami (Fla.) and Notre Dame at SMU.

Jimmy Brown Sets Rushing Mark; Browns, Giants, Colts Cop Wins

By EARL WRIGHT

Jim Brown's best sport is Lacrosse, but don't be surprised if this fabulous athlete sparks the Cleveland Browns to the National Football League's Eastern Division title.

Brown, rookie fullback from Syracuse, scored four touchdowns and set a single game NFL rushing record of 237 yards Sunday as Cleveland rallied to whip the Los Angeles Rams, 45-31. Brown scored on slashes of 69, one, one and three yards. He also set up Cleveland's last touchdown with a 46-yard run as he boosted his league-leading rushing total to 769 yards in 161 tries.

Brown bettered the old one-game rushing high of 223 yards set last year by Tom Wilson of the Rams. Brown, a 220-pounder who runs 100 yards in 10 seconds, propelled the Browns to their highest point-total since 1954 as they retained their half-game lead over the New York Giants.

Giants Scrape Through

New York, defending league and Eastern champion, stumbled through a poor second half for the third straight Sunday but defeated the Chicago Cardinals, 28-21. The Giants got all their points in the first half.

While the Browns and Giants whirled toward a Dec. 15 clash, the Baltimore Colts broke a first-place tie with the San Francisco Forty-Niners and Detroit Lions to take a one-game lead in the Western race. John Unitas' eight-yard pass to Alan Ameche in the last 47 seconds gave the Colts a 27-21 victory over the 49ers. Auto Buying Won't Up Steel Production

CLEVELAND, Ohio (UP) — A strong sellout of 1957 auto models is accelerating an expected production boost of 100 000 cars over the fourth quarter of 1956 — but it won't strengthen buying from mills, Steel Magazine said today

The metalworking weekly said current auto buying trends have not increased enough to produce more buying by manufacturers.

"Steel consumers still are cutting inventories," the publication said, "buying largely against needs in sight, and requesting prompt shipments which are readily available in all products except heavy plates and structurals"

Steel said the auto industry entered November with "fewer than 240,000 of its 1957 models in dealers showrooms" — 110 000 less than the total a year ago The magazine reported that car makers planned to complete 622 000 units this month so as to get enough models into dealers' hands

When November's selling opened. Steel said, manufacturers had a low total of only 278.000 new models in the field or en route to dealers.

The ratio of steel buying between the auto and construction industries shifted radically during the first nine months of this year, according to Steel

Auto makers — ordinarily the top consumers, with orders generally doubling those of the construction industry — received shipments totaling 10,392 996 net tons during the first nine months However, construction buyers during the same period took a record 9,637,526 tons — which tops most previous 12-month figures

Food Reports Based on Facts

The popularity of most quiz programs is an accepted fact. To be successful, they must be unrehearsed. The answers must be frank and bear the stamp of sincerity. Otherwise, the channel will will certainly be changed.

A question that was answered satisfactorily to all concerned will certainly be of interest to all consumers, as much as it was to Food Editors who took the opportunity of quizzing Dr. Robert Harris of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology: "When a consultant is employed by a food company, is he expected to report favorably upon the product on which he is doing research?"

The answer was: An accredited research scientist is influenced only by facts. With a grant from industry, he is able to do more meticulous research than would otherwise be the case. Universities encourage scientists to undertake such a project which otherwise could not be carried out on the budgets of the departments. From the findings, the consultant will be able to advise the industries as to what they can justly claim as advantageous in their promotion and advertising.

The work of a good research scientist is particularly valuable in the prevention of a food fallacy based on "partial facts," or a misinterpretation of a scientific article.

Requested recipes for the holidays

MOLDED CRANBERRY SAUCE

4 cups firm cranberries
1 cup water
2 cups sugar

Wash cranberries, removing bits of stems and wilted fruit. Add water and cook just until skins burst. Remove from heat, add sugar, and stir until sugar is thoroughly dissolved. Pour into 1-quart mold and chill, or pour into hot sterilized glasses and seal. Yield: 1-quart mold or 4 8-ounce glasses.

BROWN GRAVY

After meat has been cooked and removed to a hot platter, pour off drippings, allowing about ¼ cup to remain in pan. Stir in 5 tablespoons flour and, when well blended, cook over low heat, stirring constantly until flour is well browned. Add slowly about 2 cups cold water or stock, stirring constantly until mixture thickens and boils. Season with salt and pepper. Yield: 2 cups gravy.

QUICK MEAL

Pan-broiled ham, mashed potatoes, broccoli, tossed green salad, pears, coffee.

ORDER OF PREPARATION

Prepare greens for salad; prepare dressing; cook broccoli; pan-broil ham; prepare instant mashed potatoes; drain and dress broccoli; make coffee.

Possible Solution

WASHINGTON (UP)—House Republican leader Joseph W. Martin Jr. (Mass.) has proposed the federal government foot the bill for scientific training of five top-ranking students each year in each of the country's 435 Congressional Districts. Martin said the 2,175 students, selected competitively, would be sent to accredited scientific universities and research institutions. He said he would introduce legislation to this effect in January.

Boone Is Docked

PANAMA CITY, Fla. (UP)— A state game commission agent reported today that a game law violator didn't quite live up to his name. Daniel Boone of Birmingham, Ala., was arrested for fishing without a license.

Dressings Are Useful

The original French dressing was a simple combination of fine olive oil and wine vinegar, seasoned with sea salt and freshly ground pepper. Crisp salad greens were tossed in this and sometimes fresh herbs such as tarragon and parsley were added.

It is customary today to call any mixture of any type of salad oil with any kind of vinegar — French dressing. For flavor, it is necessary to add more seasoning — usually in the form of minced onion or a tiny bit of garlic and sometimes other herbs. Some of these combinations are very good.

Even if some use the authentic French dressing with salad, they will find other uses for commercial dressings. They are particularly good for marinating meats. They have the double function of adding a tang and of tenderizing the meat if enough time is allowed for this. At a famous restaurant in Los Angeles, Calif. a delicious hors d'oeuvre was made up of marinated cubes of beef with water chestnuts. These were fastened on small skewers and broiled.

At a luncheon, sweet-sour spareribs were featured. The ribs had been marinated for an hour before they were drained and baked until tender, brushed occasionally and generously with the dressing. Ten minutes before serving, they were placed in the broiler.

CHICKEN NEOPOLITAN

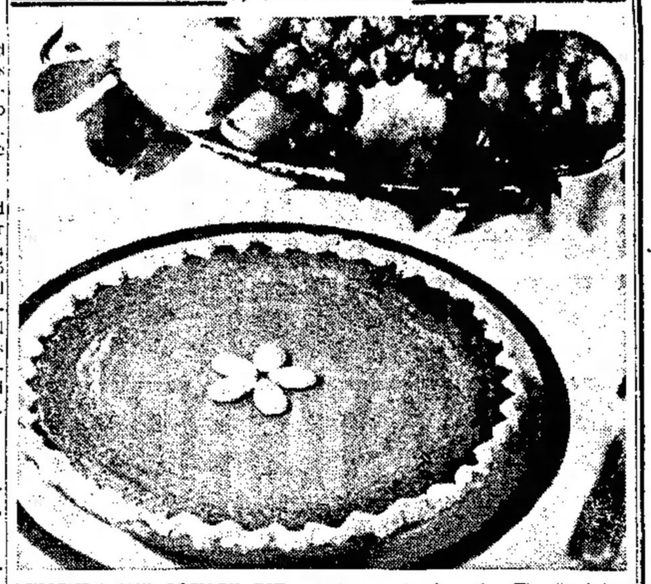
2½ to 3-pound frying chicken cut in pieces

Italian-tomato dressing

Place chicken, skin side up, in a baking pan. Pour dressing over it and marinate for 1 hour. Bake in the dressing in moderate oven (350 degrees F.) for about 1 hour, until tender. Baste frequently.

YOUR FOOD PROBLEM

By Edith M. Barber



PUMPKIN AND SQUASH PIE are top contenders for Thanksgiving dessert, and so much alike in creamy texture, spicy flavor and deep yellow-orange color that only dichard devotees can tell them apart.

Creamy Filling Favored For Pumpkin or Squash

"Oh! on Thanksgiving Day. . . What calls back the past, like the rich pumpkin pie?" This quotation from the New England poet, Whittier, would seem to settle that moot question as to whether pumpkin or squash was the popular choice of this region.

Edith Barber

Of course, an important argument like this just goes on and on. Some like pumpkin and some like squash pie. Most of us cannot tell the difference, as with a deep yellow squash even the color of the filling is practically the same. We may differ as to the amount of spice we like, but we all agree that the filling should be creamy and not too stiff.

The New England colonists learned to raise squash and pumpkin by following the Indian practice of planting them among the rows of corn. Both were known as "askutasquash." At first, they were used as a vegetable or in a pudding. Pies had to wait until wheat had been brought from England, planted and harvested and then ground by the water wheels that were soon in use wherever there was a rapid stream.

For pastry, the course flour was sifted and resifted and mixed with the lard or suet available after pigs and cattle were butchered. It was a good many years after that first Thanksgiving feast at which the Indians were guests that pumpkin or squash pie came to the New England table and started tradition on its way.

PUMPKIN PIE

1 cup sugar
1 tablespoon flour
½ teaspoon salt
2 teaspoons pumpkin pie spice
3 eggs
1½ cups cooked mashed pumpkin.
1 cup milk
Pastry for 9-inch pie

Combine sugar, flour, salt and pumpkin spice. Beat in eggs. Stir in pumpkin and add milk. Mix well. Pour into 9-inch unbaked pastry shell. Bake in hot oven (400 Degrees F.) 50 to 60 minutes or until knife inserted in the center comes out clean.

SQUASH PIE

1 cup sugar
1 tablespoon flour
½ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon ground ginger
1 teaspoon ground cinnamon
¼ teaspoon ground nutmeg
⅛ teaspoon ground cloves
2 cups mashed cooked squash
3 eggs
1 cup light cream or undiluted evaporated milk.
Pastry for 9-inch pie.

Combine sugar, flour, salt and spices. Stir in mashed squash. Beat in eggs. Gradually add cream or evaporated milk. Pour into unbaked pastry shell. Bake in hot oven (400 Degrees F.) 50 minutes, or until knife inserted in the center comes out clean.

Exotic Sauces Are Very Tasty with Cauliflower

Cauliflower is one vegetable that has a descriptive title. The first syllable is derived from the German name for cabbage, and cauliflower is certainly the flower of its family.

When fresh, it has a lovely creamy color and we should look for this when we make our purchases. The heads should not be dark, spotted or bruised. Before cooking, it is a good idea to immerse the head in salted water for a few moments so that if any small insects have made it their home, they will be evicted.

Hollandaise or a sour cream sauce is often favored with this vegetable, but you may enjoy serving it with a Latin American or Oriental sauce, as a change. With the Latin-American or Spanish sauce, it is suggested that the cooked cauliflower may be placed in a casserole with the sauce and topped with cream cheese before baking in a hot oven. The Oriental sauce may be served around the cauliflower, with extra on the side if you like.

CAULIFLOWER SPANISH MAIN

1 medium head, or 2 packages frozen cauliflower
3 tablespoons butter or margarine
¾ teaspoon salt
3 tablespoons flour
2 teaspoons Angostura bitters
1½ cups milk
1 package (3 ounces) cream cheese
Parsley sprigs

Break fresh cauliflower into flowerets and soak in cold salted water for 5 to 10 minutes. Drain. Place in saucepan and cover with salted water. Bring to a boil and cook 8 to 10 minutes. Drain. Cook frozen cauliflower according to directions on package. Melt butter, add salt and flour and stir over low heat until smooth. Mix Angostura bitters with milk and add gradually to flour mixture, stirring constantly over low heat until mixture thickens. Add cooked cauliflower to sauce and pour mixture into baking dish. Dot top with pieces of cream cheese and bake in hot oven (450 degrees F.) until sauce bubbles and cheese is slightly browned. Garnish with parsley sprigs. Yield: 6 generous servings.

Chamber Organized In Monongahela

A Greater Monongahela Area Chamber of Commerce has been organized.

At a meeting this week, Dr John A. Griffiths, superintendent of Monongahela public schools, was elected temporary chairman and a set of by-laws adopted.

Two dues schedules were presented for study.

Electricians Union Is Conducting 'How to Think' Course for Men

By FRED DANZIG

SOUTHAMPTON, N.Y. (UP) — A school designed to repair possible short circuits in the thinking process has developed a magnetic appeal for electricians.

Local 3 of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, the largest building trades local in the nation with 33,000 members, conducts a special "how to think" course for its class A craftsmen.

Each week, 30 electricians from the New York area arrive at nearby Bayberry Land, to study, read and spark their brain cells amid the splendor of a 312-acre estate.

500 Take Think Course

Since the opening semester last June, 500 electricians have taken the one-week course. They pay nothing for tuition, room or board. In fact, the joint board of New York electrical industry pays the pupils a week's wages, $140, while they are out here learning how to think.

The school campus was once the summer home of Dwight F. Davis, donor of the famous Davis Cup in tennis and a former secretary of war in the Coolidge administration. The chauffeur's cottage alone has eight rooms. The main building is so large it has 16 bathrooms-with-fireplaces. It's a setting that would make out wealthiest colleges ivy-green with envy.

Local 3 picked up this property in 1950 for a reported price of $140,000. It was used as a convalescent home for ailing union members and when this need tapered off, business manager Harry Van Arsdale cast about for a new use.

Concerned About Leisure

The "how to think" school was set up because Van Arsdale was concerned about the problem of leisure time and how to get the most out of it.

The electrician students, ranging in age from 25 to 70, study under the direction of Donn T. Coffee, a young instructor out of Columbia College who guides them through introductions to psychology, semantics, logic, history and economics. A basic book is "How To Develop Your Thinking Ability" by Kenneth S. Keyes Jr.

Students, most of whom never went beyond grade school and did not read much beyond pulp magazines or comic books, leave the course carrying small libraries of non-fiction books.

Those who ordinarily read the tabloid newspapers are given the New York Times to read at the school. Times readers try the tabloids.

Another feature is the "rumor scene," in which a verbal account of an event is passed along by four men who were not eye witnesses. The final version then is contrasted with the actual story. "This teaches the men the pitfalls of using vague, abstract and imprecise language," said Coffee.

"The course," said Coffee, "deals with how little we know rather than how much we know; how to think rather than what to think and how to improve our ideas rather than merely prove them.

"The school aims to get the men to sit back and take a long look at the process of thinking."

Busts A Bust

MIAMI BEACH (UP) — The vice president of Universal Pictures said Friday "The big bust has proven to be a big bust at the box office during the last six months." David A. Lipton told the theater owners convention it takes more than a much-publicized bosom to draw customers to motion picture houses. He said, "the public demands acting talent."

89 NOW — John Nance Garner, vice president 1932-41, lights his ever-present cigar and philosophizes on his 89th birthday in Uvalde, Tex. Philosophized he, "Ten years from now Harry Truman will be put down as one of the strongest Presidents we've had . . . I pay a big income tax I think it's just . . . There's lots of delinquency now. More than used to be."

Steelworkers Making Career Out of Work

Employment conditions in the iron and steel industry have resulted in a stable and relatively mature labor force, according to an analysis of statistics collected in 1957 by American Iron and Steel Institute.

An Institute survey, based on 88 per cent of the steel producing industry's employment showed that the average age of steel employees in 1956 remained at 42. The employee's average length of service with his present employer was 13 years. These figures were the same in 1956 as in 1955.

Nineteen per cent of hourly steelworkers were in the age range of 18 to 29 years; 27 per cent in the age range of 30-39; and 26.5 per cent in the age range 40-49.

Twenty-seven steelworkers out of each thousand were over 65 years of age, and elected to remain actively employed despite the fact that most of them were eligible for social security benefits as well as substantial company-paid pension benefits.

The survey showed that 13 per cent of all steel industry wage employees had been hired after age 40.

The length of service distribution of steel industry wage employees put about 1-5 (21 per cent) in the under 5-year period of service, ¼ (25 per cent) in the 5-9 year length of service range and nearly 1-3 (29 per cent) in the 10-19 year length of service range. (17 per cent in the 10-14 year service range and 12 per cent in the 15-19 year service range). At the upper end of length of service, 1-7 (14.5 per cent) of all employees had 25 or more years of service with their present employer.

Good working conditions, a high wage scale and devotion to safety are believed to be major factors in encouraging the continued attachment to the steel industry shown by these data.

Oil Flows

ALICANTE, Spain (UP) — Alicante citizens felt like Texans today. They had oil in the streets and money in their pockets. A storage tank owned by the government railroad sprang a slow leak three days ago and men, women and children have been scooping up oil in pots, pans and buckets ever since. The Spanish National Railroad, owners of the oil, said the people were welcome to the estimated $6,000 worth of "black gold" since there was no way to stop the flow.

Lincoln Model Homes Unveiled At Conference

New Lincoln Model Homes were unveiled for the first time recently during a sales conference in Pittsburgh.

Haskell Hawkins and Cliff Ruben, owners of the Lincoln Homes, Belle Vernon, were in charge of the conference. Sales and advertising plans for 1958 were formulated during the session, which was attended by the entire sales staff.

The Belle Vernon concern is the largest manufacturer of factory-built homes east of the Mississippi. The firm's plant in Belle Vernon occupies over 68,000 feet of floor space and four and one-half acres along the Monongahela River.

Lincoln Homes' modern production lines are now turning out one complete home every 60 minutes. Despite a national housing slowdown, this current year will be the biggest in Lincoln Home's history, according to company officials.

Over 1000 Lincoln Homes will have been sold by year's end.

Lincoln offers twelve different home designs, with a choice of twenty-six floor plans.

Culler's Again Open For Prescriptions

Culler's Drug Store in Belle Vernon is once again open for prescription service.

The new management of the pharmacy made this information public in a novel manner last week. Letters were mailed to shoppers in the Belle Vernon area by Max Sherman, pharmacist, reminding that Culler's considers "health our profession."

"We enjoy a friendly word as much as you do, so come in to just say "hello," wrote Sherman. "We're efficient — but friendly too, so drop in if only to look at our store or window displays."

Dependable Furnace Is Contest Winner

Dependable Furnace Co., 57 E. Donner Ave., Monessen, has won second place in a contest to determine the best decorated appliance store in the tri-state area. The contest was sponsored by Wesco of Pittsburgh, a subsidiary of the Westinghouse Electric Corp.

Rudy Benedetti, manager of Dependable, accepted the award recently from Herb Wadron, sales promotion head of Wesco.

Reiterates Charge

NICOSIA, Cyprus (UP)— The English-Language newspaper Cyprus Mail Sunday repeated its report that a British officer warned that his men would fire on young Cypriot children if they did not stop booing him. An official spokesman had denied the newspaper's statement that the officer commanding British forces in the village of Akanthou threatened to open fire or clamp on a curfew unless the children stopped making the derisive sounds.

Alcoa President To Speak at Economy League

Frank L. Magee, president, the Aluminum Company of America, will address the annual meeting of the Pennsylvania Economy League Thursday evening, Dec. 5, at Mountain View Hotel, east of Greensburg.

A native of Shamokin, Magee is a graduate of Lehigh University. He joined Alcoa in 1917 and has served in various capacities since then with time out for military service in World War I as a sergeant in the Army's Signal Corps.

Magee is an officer and director of several Alcoa subsidiaries and also a director of the Presbyterian Hospital, Health and Welfare Federation of Allegheny County, and Fidelity Trust Company. He is a member of many other civic, professional and social organizations.

In 1948 Magee was awarded the president's certificate of merit through the United States Air Force in recognition of his contribution to the war effort during World War II.

In 1956 he received an honorary degree of doctor of engineering from Lehigh University and in 1957 he was elected a corporate trustee of the University.

Four Die in Fire

SUTTON, W. Va. (UP)—Gasoline used accidentally in a coal heating stove was blamed today for a fire that destroyed a rural home Sunday, killing a mother and three of her children. Police said the father, injured seriously, tossed gasoline instead of kerosene into the stove. They said one of the youngsters apparently filled the can with gas. The only surviving child received minor burns.

Leader Calls on GOP to Name Group to Study

HARRISBURG (UP) — Gov. George M. Leader has called on Republican legislative leaders to name their appointees to the commission which will study possible revision of Pennsylvania's 83-year-old Constitution.

Leader asked Senate President Pro Tempore M. Harvey Taylor (Dauphin) and House Speaker W. Stuart Helm (Armstrong) to name the five persons each is entitled to appoint to the commission. Leader, who also is empowered to name five citizens to the commission, made his selections last Oct. 5.

The governor said there "already has been too much delay" in selecting the group.

"Clearly Taylor and Helm should not delay any longer in announcing their appointments," he said. "This commission faces a job that is tremendously important to the Commonwealth; further it faces a job that is big and complicated."

Leader pointed out that the commission must complete its work in time to submit its report to the 1959 General Assembly almost immediately after it convenes.

No Carryover

HOLLYWOOD (UP) — Actress Dorothy McGuire plays a farm mother in "Old Yeller," who as a frontier woman manages live — stock, cuts lumber and handles outdoor chores with complete competence. "It all ends when I get to can't even grow grass successfully in my backyard."

Cystic Fibrosis Is Threat

By H. N. BUNDESEN, M. D.

Probably very few of you have ever heard of cystic fibrosis. Yet this disease, a grave one for children, is more common than multiple sclerosis and muscular dystrophy. And I'm sure most of you have heard of them.

Cystic fibrosis is a congenital, hereditary disease of children whose respiratory tracts are blocked by abnormal secretions of mucus. This leads to obstruction, infection and, too often, death.

The lungs, the pancreas, the salivary glands and the sweat glands are involved. About one youngster in every 600 is affected. Unfortunately, half of the victims did not heretofore survive past the age of five.

However, with our recent medical advances, it is now possible for persons who fall victim to cystic fibrosis in infancy to reach their teens and in some cases, their twenties.

Daily Threat

Despite continued doses of antibiotics to control pulmonary infection, cystic fibrosis remains a daily threat to all who have it. In fact, one expert on the disease makes the grim statement that for 80 per cent of all young victims of the disease, "the prognosis is grave."

Currently, the treatment being used for C. F. children (as we call young victims) is continued use of antibiotics both by mouth and by inhalation therapy. This helps prevent and control lung infections.

As a substitute for blocked digestive enzymes, pancreas replacement products are needed, and high protein foods also are given.

Cystic fibrosis is transmitted to offspring by a recessive gene which both parents must have. In most families of such parents, one out of four children is affected. In some, however, the incidence rate may run as high as four or five out of five children.

Cystic fibrosis is not detected quite as often as it should be. One of the reasons is that symptoms are similar to other conditions, such as asthma and bronchitis.

Most common symptoms are chronic cough, repeated pneumonia, bulky diarrhea and a tremendous appetite, but little gain in weight.

Cystic fibrosis presents a serious threat to many of our children. We're working on a solution to this grave problem; but unfortunately, as yet we don't have it.

Question and Answer

D T.. What causes hiccup in a baby?

Answer: Hiccup is a spasm of the large muscle that separates the chest and the abdomen.

In babies, hiccup usually comes on right after feeding and, in most cases, lasts only a few moments.

In Hollywood—

Mary Martin Hit of TV Was Movie Flop

By VERNON SCOTT

HOLLYWOOD (UP) — Leading contender for title of television's first lady is Mary Martin, the will-o'-the-wisp cutie who appears only in two-hour extravaganzas.

A flop in movies, Mary is probably the highest paid performer in TV. She was seen by an astonishing 100 million persons in her two performances of "Peter Pan."

Wednesday night the diminutive actress stars in "Annie Get Your Gun," another blockbuster, and the first legitimate $1 million show in video annals.

Mary's TV success is all the more amazing in view of her failure in movies. She laid a whole carton of eggs on the screen, the last of which was an ostrich-sized beauty titled "True To Life" at Paramount in 1942.

A Hit On TV

"It's still a mystery to me why I've been so well accepted on TV," Mary said during a rehearsal break.

She was togged in beige sweater and slacks. Curled up in a chair, the impish expression in her shoe-button eyes, and close-cropped hair gave the impression that she was rehearsing again for Peter Pan.

"I always loathed movies. Couldn't stand to see myself on the screen. But television is perfect. I've found the formula for it.

"Before a play or musical is televised it should travel around the country as a road show. I'll never do a TV program any other way. It gives everyone an opportunity to know exactly what they're doing."

Mary Martin

Mary took "Peter Pan" on the road the year before last. This year she toured with "Annie" for several months before beginning rehearsals for TV.

Six Stages Needed

"Every Broadway play has tryouts in New Haven or Boston," she piped. "So why not do the same with television spectaculars."

NBC-TV expects an audience of some 70 million for "Annie." The show has taken over three color studios, a hallway and the carpenter's shop at the network's gigantic Burbank plant. Altogether six stages will be utilized to accommodate the cast of 60.

If a million bucks sounds out of line for a two-hour TV show, consider that a small item like five trees in the scenery cost $500 each. Then there's a 30-piece orchestra, 25 pounds of makeup, 56,000 pounds of wood, canvas and steel for sets, 333 costumes weighing over a ton, three horses (one an understudy) and a treadmill for the horses, 1000 rounds of ammunition for rehearsal and show, 80 assorted guns, a million watts of power to light the show, etc.

Add to this salaries of cast and crew and you begin to get the idea.

"I've never done anything small or simple on television," Mary concluded. "But this is the biggest one of all."

Morris to Leave Sid Caesar

By WILLIAM EWALD

NEW YORK (UP) — When Sid Caesar calls together his comedy family on ABC-TV this January, one member will be missing—Howie Morris.

"It was a tough decision to make, maybe the toughest of my life," said Morris of his decision to break away. "Sid is the best, the greatest in the business. And he offered me security and steady exposure.

"But I felt two things. One, that his new half-hour container wasn't one in which I could perform happily or be of much use—there just wasn't enough room. And two, I consider myself an actor, not just a comic. I want to grow as an actor. If you stand still, you don't grow. I just don't want to stagnate."

Played Shakespeare

All five-foot-six of Morris, whose Army career included stretches in Maurice Evans' G.I. productions of "Hamlet" and "MacBeth," will get a chance to start growing on Dec. 15. That's when Morris tackles the role of "Feste" in an NBC - TV production of Shakespeare's "Twelfth Night."

"I left Caesar so I could do a lot of things with my career. That's why I'm so delighted with this crack at Shakespeare. One of the hardest things in this business is to shift from one type of role to another.

"Right now, when producers hear my name, they automatically think—'Morris? Oh, yeah, the little guy, the little comic.' That's the label I have to get rid of."

Morris hooted at reports of dissension between himself and Caesar.

"Listen, Sid, Carl Reiner and I were like a family. You get to know each other pretty well when you work together for nine years. And believe me, we were together — from 11 in the morning until six at night, six times a week.

"I think we got along fantastically well considering the dispositions that go with show people. You know, a couple of other TV shows have offered to take me on as a regular since I decided to leave Sid, but I turned them down. I figure that there's not much point in leaving the best in the business and thend winding up with the second best."

Has Done Solos

Morris has done a brace of solos since he left Caesar — he worked a "Matinee Theater" and a Polly Bergen show. He's also carving out a night club routine which he hopes to unveil soon.

"I'm 38 now and I've got two kids and a wife and I won't deny for a while back there I'd wake up in a sweat in the middle of the night when I thought about being on my own," said Morris.

"And I'm still scared. I'm petrified. It's a big chance to take—giving up the security of a steady job. But you know, for the first time in many years, I have a feeling everything's going to come out all right."

Turnpike Plans to Be Ready For Any Bad Weather Driving

"Motorists who drive the Pennsylvania Turnpike this winter will find our road weather-ready" Joseph J. Lawler, vice-chairman of the Pennsylvania Turnpike Commission said today following an inspection of maintenance facilities of the famous roadway. Lawler was accompanied on the inspection tour by H. George Yeager, Commission maintenance superintendent.

"The first obligation of this commission is to provide persons traveling our roadway, a highway that is safe both under ideal and inclement weather and road conditions," Lawler said.

"We invite all motorists particularly bus operators, truckers, and other commercial traffic operating on schedules, to take advantage of the relative comfort and safety of travel via our facility.

"Diligent efforts have been made to assure potential patrons of our system that when treacherous driving conditions exist, immediate action will be taken to combat the elements responsible and to remove snow and ice from the roadway."

An idea of the importance the commission places on snow removal and road maintenance can be learned by a study of the winter maintenance program, set up by Yeager and his assistant Joseph F. Driscoll.

In the field, the commission maintenance organization is divided into five districts of about 100 miles each. In each of these five districts there is a maintenance superintendent assisted by two maintenance supervisors each of whom are responsible for two sections of approximately 25 miles in length. A typical maintenance force at each section consists of 25 men and approximately 12 trucks equipped with snow plows and cinder spreaders.

On the entire system, there is a total of 223 snow plows, 3 Sno Gos (rotary snow plows,) 148 manual type cinder spreaders, and 75 automatic hopper-type cinder spreaders, twenty — 8 ton trucks, forty-five — 2½ ton trucks, forty-four — 5 ton trucks, ninety-five two ton trucks and nineteen graders.

The huge SnoGos are housed in the immediate area where the greatest snow difficulty is expected. Cinder piles are strategically located along the roadway to keep the time element in loading and spreading the cinders to a minimum.

All maintenance men are on 24-hour call duty during the winter season. A 24-hour patrol is maintained so that when ice or snow conditions threaten, these men are alerted to assure the immediate removal of the treacherous driving condition produced by these elements.

Roadway and weather condition reports are radioed from the central communications center, near Harrisburg, to all maintenance sections every two hours, 24 hours daily, describing the weather and road conditions in each maintenance section over the entire 470 miles of roadway.

Pennsylvania State Police assigned to the Turnpike reduce the speed limit to 35 miles per hour in cases where any excessive speed would make driving dangerous When the police reduce the speed limit, the road is posted immediately with large signs indicating the reduced speed.

"We have organized our maintenance department with a flexibility that permits it to attack any problem from whatever angle it occurs. We are going to do everything we possibly can to make driving safe and pleasurable over our entire system and make good our intent that whatever the weather, it pays to travelTurnpike", Lawler said.

Rain Mixed with Snow Forecast For This Area

By UNITED PRESS

An area of low pressure air centered in the south was expected to move north and spread some rain over eastern Pennsylvania today and rain mixed with snow over central and western parts of the state in the afternoon.

The mixed rain and snow was expected to continue over central and western portions tonight and end late tonight or early Tuesday morning.

Temperatures today will be generally in the middle and upper 40's for most of the state except for mountainous sections and higher elevations where the mercury will drop into the middle and upper 30's.

Tuesday is expected to be generally cloudy during the day with temperatures in the upper 40's in eastern portions and in the middle 40's elsewhere.

Nation's Inflationary Spiral Halted for Awhile

By ROBERT G. SHORTAL

NEW YORK (UP)—The inflationary spiral that has hit every American in the pocketbook has come to a halt — at least temporarily.

This was good news for businessmen and consumers alike. It was one of the few news items this week that could be listed on the asset side of the business ledger.

In the postwar period, rising costs have plagued Americans from all walks of life. This spiral has pinched the businessman's profits and forced budgeting housewives to "stretch" the dollar.

This week the government announced that the cost of living in October was unchanged from September, ending the 13-month climb in consumer prices.

Gross National Product

Inflation — manifested in rising prices — has accounted for most of the increases in key economic barometers such as the gross national product. The GNP measures the value of goods and services produced in the economy.

The government reported that the gross national product in the third quarter ran at an annual rate of 439 billion dollars, a gain of 13 billion dollars since the first of the year.

However, government spokesmen said practically the entire increase reflected higher prices. This means inflation has cost Americans 13 billion dollars.

Many people received pay increases which offset or more than offset the rise in living costs. But many people saw living costs rise faster than earnings, and to that extent they are worse off than last year.

Purchasing Power Down

The Labor Department said a decline in factory take home pay, plus the increase in living costs this year, has resulted in a loss in purchasing power of per cent from a year ago.

Commissioner of Labor Statistics Ewan Clague said "people are not so prosperous as a year ago."

The fact that inflationary pressures have lost steam and business has begun to turn down explains why the Federal Reserve has moved to ease credit restrictions. The move is designed to spur sagging business.

Will it work? that is the question being asked in top business circles. Here's how one top economist summed it up?

Takes Time

"It took months for the Federal Reserve Board's anti-inflationary policies to take hold. But they took hold and that explains in part the decline in business activity now. The shift toward easier credit will take months to filter down through the economy and stimulate industrial production.

"You cannot turn credit on and off like a faucet," he emphasized.

Most economists anticipate further credit easing in the month ahead, but most agree that the decline in business will continue at least through the first half of 1958. Many look for no great improvment in business until late 1959 or early 1960.

Unemployment is expected to mount to four million by th middle of next year. Retail sales already are showing signs of sluggishness as cautious consumers begin preparing for that "rainy day." Mounting unemployment is not conducive to a sonsumer spending spree.

Signs of the Time

CHICAGO (UP)— A Chicagoan advertises his car-wash business with a huge sign that reads "collectors of external residue."

Liquor Board Cites Many in Pittsburgh Area

HARRISBURG (UP)—The state Liquor Control Board has revoked, effective Dec. 17, the license of the Gateway Hotel, 129-131 Fourth Ave., Pittsburgh, and ordered bond posted by the licensee forfeited.

The board also suspended the licenses of these establishments:

Prince Charles Ducked in Battle At Boys' School

LONDON (UP) — Daily Mail columnist Paul Tanfield today reported a battle royal at Cheam School — a boys-will-be-boys tussle in which Britain's Prince Charles was ducked under a cold water tap.

Tanfield quoted Cecil Cox, the barber who trims students hair at Cheam, the school where 9-year-old Prince Charles is getting a public school education.

"A lad who was bigger and older than Charles was holding his (royal) head under one of the bath taps one day I was at Cheam," Tanfield quoted Cox as saying.

"Charles was shrieking away at the top of his voice. So I said, 'Why stand for that, youngster? Do the same to him.'

"They fought for fully 15 minutes. At last Charles got this lad's head over the bath. But he hadn't the strength to hold him there and turn the tap on. So he let him go—and filled the bath.

"Then they went at it again for another 15 minutes. At last, Charles tumbled this lad in. He (the prince) is strong as a young ox and game, too.

"The only trouble was that Charles went in as well. There they were, both fully dressed, and up over the knees in it, soaked."

Cox said the royal student has earned himself a dual reputation in the weeks he has been at Cheam. His manners are exemplary, but he has a habit of using his voice to the full. That habit earned him his only punishment mark, for shrieking in the dormitory, Cox said.

Oppenheimer May Get Missile Work

WASHINGTON (UP)—Physicist J. Robert Oppenheimer is reported "on the verge" of being asked to go back to work for the government in the new missiles effort.

Oppenheimer, sometimes called the "father" of the A-bomb, lost his clearance to handle top nuclear secrets in June, 1954, on security grounds. While his own loyalty was not challenged, he was accused of questionable associations.
